

Figure S2. Species richness of amphibians (a) and reptiles (b) in rustic cocoa (circle) and forest (triangle), at the community, level in the Lacandona rainforest, Mexico. Species richness curves show the results of rarefaction (solid part of lines) and extrapolation (dotted part of lines), while shaded areas represent 95% confidence intervals. In both cases, there was no difference between habitats.