Experimental and filler materials

This file contains the list of all stimuli used in the experiment. Sentences were adapted from the critical stimuli used in Lau et al. (2006). There are four variants of each sentence. The sentence variants correspond to the critical conditions as follows: a: ellipsis/*of; c: ellipsis/temporal; b: non-ellipsis/*of; and d: non-ellipsis/*temporal. There are four types of filler conditions: (1) ellipsis context (possessive in first clause), with an overt noun in the second clause; (2) non-ellipsis context (i.e., no possessive in first clause), with a possessive and overt noun in the second clause; (3) non-ellipsis context in which of is used in a grammatical way; and (4) Non-ellipsis context, unrelated. Some of the fillers contained a word order violation (WO), or a verb conjugation violation (VC).

Supplementary Figures

Figures S1 and S2 provide the ERPs to the conditions with the temporal prepositions. In contrast to Figures 3 and 4 provided in the main text, the ERPs are time-locked to the onset of the preposition, thus subtracting out the spurious differences between the two conditions preceding the preposition.

Figures S3 and S4 provide the ERPs to the conditions with the preposition of. In contrast to Figures 1 and 2 provided in the main text, the ERPs are time-locked to the onset of the preposition and averaged to the mean of all scalp electrodes, hence allowing a better comparison with the results reported in Lau, Stroud, Plesch & Phillips (2006).
Supplementary Figure S1. ERPs for the Native English group, ellipsis temporal condition (solid line) and non-ellipsis temporal condition (dotted line). ERPs are time-locked to the onset of the onset of the preposition, relative to a 100 ms pre-preposition baseline and referenced to the averaged mastoids.
Supplementary Figure S2. ERPs for the L2 group, ellipsis temporal condition (solid line) and non-ellipsis temporal condition (dotted line) referenced to the averaged mastoids. ERPs are plotted from the onset of the preposition, relative to a 100 ms pre-preposition baseline. Arrow: late frontal negativity for the non-ellipsis condition.
